Corruption Report on Mozambique

On June 1, the Department of State will release a report on corruption in Mozambique titled, "Corruption Assessment: Mozambique." Management Systems International of Washington, DC, authored the study, which was contracted by the U.S. Agency for International Development in Maputo, Mozambique.

Fighting corruption encourages good governance, strengthens civil society and promotes stable economic development. At the June 2003 G8 Summit in Evian, France, the leaders of all eight member nations approved an anti-corruption and transparency action plan. They committed themselves to assist developing countries to provide for accountability and adopt transparency. This independent report flows directly from that commitment.

Copies in English and Portuguese will be available on the website of the U.S. Embassy in Maputo at <http://maputo.usembassy.gov>. The report does not necessarily reflect the views of the U.S. Government.
